Seventh-day Adventist Church
Over 200 youth workers from Virginia, the District of Columbia and Maryland will meet in a three - day Youth Leadership Training program at Montebello, Virginia September 18-20. They will spend the week end in learning new techniques of youth leadership that covers everything from formal church programs to camping instructions and wilderness survival.

Directing the training program is Otis Graves, director of youth activities for the Potomac Conference of Seventh-day Adventists headquarters in Staunton, Va. Graves states that the purpose in calling the youth leaders of the state's seventy-seven churches is to give the latest instruction and training to youth workers in latest techniques in how to interest and hold young people in the church.

Keynote speaker for the week end activities is Mildred Johnson, of Washington, D.C., associate director of youth activities in the General Conference of wide organization, with headquarters in Washington, D.C. Other instructors include Horace Tuttle, of Wytheville, Va., naturalist, Richard Bendell, educator from New Market, Va., J. N Morgan, public relations secretary, and Robert E. Hamilton, educational superintendent of the state organization of Adventists.

All of the instructional meetings will be held at Hidden Valley Youth Camp located near Montebello, Va. A dual training program will be in operation offering instruction on both Junior and Senior levels.

Marshall And Caldwell Reunion

The Marshall - Caldwell reunion was held on Labor Day Sunday at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Marshall, now owned by their son, Forrest Marshall and wife, of Roanoke.

This has been an annual occasion since 1939. There were over 100 members of the clan present.

Mr. Ben Marshall, the retiring president, presided over the meeting and gave the welcome address. A list of those who has passed on since our last meeting was read and those bereaves families were remembered in the invocation, given by Mr. Jones Caldwell, of Lynchburg.

The day was ideal for the bountiful picnic dinner which was served on tables under the spreading oak trees, after which a business meeting was called for the nomination and elections of officers to serve for the next two years. Richard Caldwell, of Martinsville, was elected president and Jimmy Marshall, Rt. 4, Appomattox, vice president, and Mary M. Grudoy, of Lynchburg, secretary and treasurer.

The social hours which followed are always enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Kate Chesthem Marshall, the oldest lady present, and son, Glenn, and wife, of Portsmouth, Ohio, were present. Other cities represented were Bristol, Tenn., Dunn, N.C., Warren, Michigan, Dante, ber, Richmond, Richwood West Va., Roanoke, Bedford and Lynchburg.

Prizes were awarded the two oldest ladies present.

Our thanks are extended to Forrest and wife for their hospitality and privilege of meeting at the same place for the past 25 years. So here's hoping to meet each and everyone again next Labor Day, Sunday 1965.

Vera P-TA Will Meet Sept. 24

The P-TA of Vera Elementary School will meet Thursday, Sept. 24 at 7:30 p.m. All parents, patrons, and friends are urged to attend.
